2. Process Diagrams and Maps

Example Question:

Initially, used plastic bottles are collected and transported to a recycling facility. At this stage, the bottles are sorted to remove non-plastic materials such as labels and caps. Next, the bottles are cleaned thoroughly to eliminate any contaminants. Once cleaned, they are shredded into small flakes, which are then melted down to form a viscous liquid.

The molten plastic is subsequently molded into new bottles or other plastic products through extrusion or injection molding processes. These newly manufactured items are then cooled, inspected for quality, and finally packaged for distribution.

Overall, the process emphasizes a continuous cycle aimed at reducing waste and conserving resources by transforming used bottles into reusable products.

Features:

- Clear chronological sequence.
- Use of passive voice appropriately.
- Precise vocabulary related to manufacturing and recycling.
- Cohesive paragraph with clear topic sentences.

3. Multiple Charts and Data Sets (Comparative Analysis)

City X maintains a relatively steady temperature, averaging between 15°C and 25°C across the year.

The data suggest that City Y has a more pronounced seasonal variation, whereas City Z's climate is milder and cooler overall.

Features:

- Clear comparison of data sets.
- Use of comparative language ("more pronounced," "relatively cooler").
- Accurate referencing of figures.
- Well-organized structure.

4. Process and Causal Diagrams

Example Question:

The diagram below shows the process of producing electricity using solar panels. Describe the main stages involved.

Band 9 Model Answer:

The diagram illustrates the process of generating electricity through solar panels, beginning with sunlight absorption and culminating in power distribution.

Initially, sunlight strikes the solar panels, which consist of photovoltaic cells that convert solar energy into direct current (DC) electricity. This DC electricity then flows into an inverter, which transforms it into alternating current (AC), suitable for household and industrial use.

Subsequently, the AC electricity is transferred to a control unit that monitors and regulates the power output. From there, the electricity is transmitted via cables to the electricity grid, ready for distribution to homes and businesses.

This process exemplifies a renewable energy method that harnesses sunlight to produce clean, sustainable electricity with minimal environmental impact.

- Task Achievement: Addressing all parts of the task and presenting a clear position.

Sample IELTS Writing Task 2 Prompt

Some people believe that government funding should be allocated to arts such as music and painting, while others think that funding should be directed toward more important sectors such as healthcare and education. Discuss both views and give your own opinion.

Band 9 Sample Essay

Introduction

In contemporary society, the allocation of government resources is a contentious issue, with debates often centering on whether funding should prioritize the arts or essential sectors like healthcare and education. While some argue that investing in artistic pursuits enriches cultural life and promotes national identity, others contend that pressing social needs demand immediate financial support. This essay will examine both perspectives before asserting that a balanced approach, which recognizes the intrinsic value of the arts alongside vital public services, is the most pragmatic solution.

Body Paragraph 1: The Case for Investing in Arts

Advocates for increased artistic funding argue that arts such as music, painting, and theater serve as vital components of cultural heritage and national identity. Artistic expression fosters social cohesion, stimulates creativity, and enhances quality of life. For example, public art projects and cultural festivals can promote tourism, generate economic benefits, and instill pride among citizens. Furthermore, arts education can develop skills such as critical thinking and emotional intelligence, which are valuable across all sectors. Critics might suggest that arts are luxury items, but evidence indicates that a thriving cultural sector can contribute significantly to a nation's global reputation and economic development.

Body Paragraph 2: The Need to Prioritize Healthcare and Education

Conversely, many believe that government funding should primarily address pressing social issues such as healthcare and education. These sectors directly impact citizens' well-being and future prospects. For instance, investing in universal healthcare ensures that populations have access to essential medical services, reducing mortality rates and improving overall public health. Similarly, adequate funding for education equips individuals with the skills necessary to participate effectively in the economy, thereby fostering social mobility and long-term national growth. Given the increasing challenges posed by pandemics, aging populations, and technological changes, neglecting these sectors could have detrimental consequences for society's stability and development.

Body Paragraph 3: Finding a Middle Ground

While both perspectives have merit, a nuanced approach that balances funding across various sectors is arguably optimal. Governments should recognize that arts and culture are not merely discretionary expenses but investments in social cohesion and national identity that complement foundational sectors like health and education. For example, allocating a modest percentage of the national budget to arts can stimulate economic activity without compromising essential services. Moreover, innovative funding models such as public-private partnerships can enhance resource efficiency and sustainability. Ultimately, a harmonious distribution of resources ensures a well-rounded society where cultural vibrancy and social welfare coexist.

Conclusion

In conclusion, the debate over government funding priorities reflects broader questions about societal values and development strategies. While investing in the arts can yield cultural and economic dividends, neglecting healthcare and education could undermine social stability. Therefore, a balanced approach that allocates resources judiciously across all vital sectors is essential for fostering a thriving, resilient society. Policymakers should strive to appreciate the multifaceted benefits of arts funding while ensuring that fundamental public needs are adequately met.

1. Depth and Development of Ideas

Essays at this level do more than just state opinions or describe facts; they analyze, evaluate, and synthesize ideas. For example, instead of merely stating that "climate change is a serious issue," a high-scoring essay might explore underlying causes, societal impacts, and potential solutions, demonstrating critical thinking.

3. Clear, Logical Organization

These essays follow a well-structured format: an introduction that clearly states the thesis, body paragraphs that develop ideas with supporting evidence, and a concise conclusion. Transitions and linking phrases are employed effectively to ensure smooth flow.

4. Accurate and Appropriate Language Use

Language errors are minimal or nonexistent. The tone remains formal and academic, fitting the context of IELTS writing tasks.

5. Critical and Balanced Perspectives

Especially in argumentative essays, high-scoring responses consider multiple viewpoints, weigh evidence, and present well-reasoned arguments, demonstrating analytical prowess.
